

"Standing At The Window With The Porch Light On"

Luke 15: 11-32

I. The Father Loves Us Enough To Allow Us To Make Choices.

- In essence, the son is making the choice to be _____ from the family. He is giving up all rights to son-ship.
- What choice have you made? Have you chosen to live the way God wants you to live, or are you choosing to live in a state of rebellion and wishing the Father was dead? Are you living according to your own rules and what makes you feel good?

II. The Father Loves Us Enough To Allow Us To Pay The Consequences.

- The young prodigal son now _____ from his family and home, makes his way to a foreign land where he lives a sinful and wicked lifestyle.
- The father knew that a true reunion, a true relationship, a true restoration could only come about when the son knew that he _____ the help of the father.
- Consequences are not to _____, but they are to open our eyes to the _____ of our choices.

III. The Father Loves Us Enough To Allow Us To Come Home.

- ?? The younger son comes home with a broken and contrite heart. He comes home _____ for the help of the father, he comes home _____ with all his being a relationship with his father.

?? When we come to the Lord with an _____ heart, a _____ spirit, and a _____ for a relationship that will fill the void in our souls, then God is "standing at the window with the porch light on" waiting to let us in.

ARE YOU READY TO COME HOME?
